Mr. Citizen calls the Ombudsperson to alert them to the tire problem. The Ombudsperson calls the Director of Public Works to inquire about the problem. Public Works advises the Ombudsperson that they will follow up with the contractor who is responsible for the waste removal.

Six months later, the problem is not resolved. Mr. Citizen calls the Ombudsperson again, who now has 300 complaints from the neighborhood. The Ombudsperson continues to pursue the problem by calling the Inspector General for help.

Alerted to the tire problem, the Inspector General (IG) starts an investigation into the Public Works department, and the contract and contractor responsible for the work that is not being done. When the IG cannot find the contractor, or get in contact with the company responsible for the work, he begins to suspect fraud. The IG finds that the contractor accepted the money from Public Works but did not complete any work. The IG call the Auditor General to determine how much money was paid to the contractor, suspends this contractor from working with the city and refers the case to the City prosecutor for resolution. During the investigation, the IG finds that the contractor is the brother-in-law of the Director of Public Works. After finding this, the IG consults with the Board of Ethics.
